However, it was learned that the foreign and finance ministers resterday discussed energy con-servation, emergency oil sharing and how to handle the surplus Arab oil revenue pouring into international money markets and threatening to disrupt the world monetary erstem.

A key topic at the meeting was Britain's chancellor of the Exchequer, Denis Healey, that oil-producing nations contribute a special $30-billion fund, within the International Monetary Fund, from which industrial nations could borrow.

Although he managed to stay in office under pressure from the left. Gen. Spinola seemed to have lost ground to the group of younger army officers who carried out the military coup in April. The crisis developed out of an attempt yesterday to organize a

PLO Speech Address by Arafat To Assembly Sought

By Paul Hofmann

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 29 (NYT).-Foreign ministers and other officials representing the 20 members of the Arab League bave agreed on a draft resolu-tion that would invite the Palestine Liberation Organization as the 'representative of the Palestinian people" to address the UN General Assembly.

The procedure envisaged by the Amb Lergue has said to be without precedent in the UN. Nevertheless, the sponsors of the draft resolution bope that it will be adopted by a comfortable majority. Its adoption would enable Yassir Arafat, the leader of the PLO, the main grouping of guerrilla organizations, to appear in the assembly during the first week of November.

Details of the Arah strategy were learned yesterday in an interview with Poreign Minister Fuad Naffah of Lebanon, Mr. Naffah, a Maronite Christian, now holds the rotating chairmanship of the Arab League's Council.

The United States did not object to a move by the Arab League earlier this month to have "the question of Palestine" en tered as a separate item on the agenda of the General Assembly. American campaign on oil. "Those who allowed the differences be-tween them and the developing countries of the world... have no right today to speak about aid and reduction." In private, Egyptian officials say more pointedly that they will not intervene with oil producers on the price issue as they did on the embargo in return for Mr. Kissinger's efforts to promote disengagement agreements on the Sinsi and Golan fronts with Israel.

Egypt worked closely with Saudi Arabia in the embargo's lifting and Mr. Sadat's decision to stay out of the price battle undercuts the chances for broader Arab backing for the Saudi effort to bring prices down.

"The confrontation speeches were uncalled for," an Egyptian official said, "especially after we opened the door for Secretary [of the Treasury William! ## Bishops at Rome Synod Urge Church to Recognize Failings

ROME, Sept. 29 (NYT).— Bishops speaking for all the Roman Catholic episcopal conferences of the world called on the church yesterday to be faithful to the Gospei and also to recognize its own failings.

On the second day of the meeting of the Synod of Bishops, five prelates from five continents reported the views of their colleagues. All five expressed bope

"Many reports strongly emphasize that the church must shift its gaze from itself and toward Christ and man," said the Most Rev. Roger Etchegaray, archbishop of Marseilles, who was relaying the ideas of European episcopal conferences. "In fact the church, bearer of the Gospel, appears to have become an obstacle to the Gospel. Its reputation is damaged, especially because the church seems to use up all its energy dealing with internal matters. The image of a narcissistic church has nothing attractive about it.'

the United States. Half of the speech, concerned Mr. Ford's appeal to oil-producing countries for a lowering of oil prices to avert worldwide economic chaos.

Mr. Castro said international inflation is a result of U.S. pol-icies. Alluding to the "hundreds of billions of dollars" the United States has spent on its "war budget," Mr. Castro said; "In these deplorable imperialistic poiicies are the roots of inflation, which emerged long before the oil-price increases."

The speech indicates a retreat by Mr. Castro from signs of willingness to move toward normal ties with the United States.

The senators' visit was an indication of a Cuban policy shift, Mr. Castro also had expressed hope that Mr. Ford's accession to the White House last month might lead to an improved climate between the countries.

There is a movement in the Organization of American States to drop the 10-year-old hemispheric economic and diplomatic sanctions against Cuba, and the United States is reportedly reviewing its Cuban policy. The United States severed ties with the Castro government in January, 1961.

Sabotage Claims Doubted in Blast On Soviet Ship

ANKARA, Sept. 29 (Reuters).— NATO sources have dismissed reports that sabotage may have caused the recent reported sink-ing of a Soviet guided missile destroyer in the Black Sea.

It was reported that about 200 men died in the sinking. It was not known whether any of the crew had survived, the sources

He warned his brethren-gathered here for a one-month session with conclusions intended as advice to Pope Paul VI-that the task of evangelization is not simple. "Atheism is not the excep-tion," he said. "Indeed, what is more unusual is to find true faith."

Reporting for the African conferences, the Most Rev. James Sangu, hishop of M'Beya, Tan-zania, recalled that Africans associated Christians with colonialism and with rivalry of sects. But he noted that in the last 20 years missions have become dioceses, with evangelization in the hands of Africans.

Joseph Cardinal Cordeiro, archbishop of Karachi, Pakistan, on behalf of the Asian bishops, noted that "a certain kind of colonialist hangover [a word be used in English in his Latin speech] constituted an obstacle the work of evangelization." In Asia, the cardinal reminded his colleagues, Christianity is a minority religion and effective evangelization requires the faithful to study Buddhism, Hinduism

On behalf of English-language episcopal conferences, the Most Rev. Joseph Bernsrdin, archbishop of Cincinnati, suggested that a secularized culture was neither an exception nor an option, but rather the contemporary one for evangelization and not an obstacle, but a challenge, requiring a different sort of formation in the faith.

All this marks a sharp turn from his tough and unyielding stance in the February election, which be called during his fight with the coal miners, whose strike against wage controls led three-day week for much of British industry and widespread power blackouts. Then, he de-manded to know "Who governs

The result of this strategy, together with that of the Labor party, has been to remove much of the sting from the campaign so far and generally to obscure the differences between just how the two major parties would grapple with the crucial issue of inflation, now running at about

Wallace Says Doctors Approve Candidacy

By Jack Nelson

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 29. -Alabama Gov. George Wallace said Friday that doctors have assured him he is physically able to campaign for the presidency and serve in that office.

Buoyed by a Gallup poll showing him as the leading contender for the Democratic nomination in 1976, the partly paralyzed governor dismissed other contender as "old faces from Washington."

President Ford would have to solve inflation and other problems before he would have a chance to be elected, Gov. Wallace said. The governor made it clear he considered these problems "insurmountable" in Mr. Ford's remaining term of office.

Although Gov. Wallace has continued to maintain a national campaign apparatus, he insisted he has still not made up his mind whether to run in 1976. He said he probably would announce his decision in early 1975.

Gov. Wallace, who is confined to a wheelchair, was interviewed before departing on a party fund-raising tour. "Can't you see I'm strong physically?" he said, flexing his left arm and displaying a bulging bicep, the result of weightlifting and other physical therapy. Gov. Wallace has been paralyzed from the waist down since April, 1972, when he was shot during a presidential campaign rally in Maryland. For months afterward there was doubt that he would ever regain the health and strength needed to remain in politics. He has undergone several operations. He looked robust on Friday, although he said he would have had better coloring if he had not had to remain indoors for several days

"What is it that I can't do that veilled," Gen. Haig replied. "It was very clear to me that that requires you to have a head and shoulders? "Now I don't compare myself with Roosevelt, but Roosevelt didn't walk a day in his life while he was President."

Results of Poll He held up a news clipping of a Gallup poll showing that with Sen, Edward Kennedy's withdrawal from contention, Gov. Wallace leads his nearest rival, Sen, George McGovern, by 27 per cant to 17 per cent "Look at that," he said, flicking his cigar in an ashtray, "even in the North I'm out front [21 per cent to Sen Edmund Muskie's 19 per cent]."

Gov Wallace said that he does a lot of work from his bed every morning, running his politics and the state government by tele-phone. In the afternoons he goes to his office for a few hours, but he minimised the importance of being there, saying it is mostly for ceremonial functions,

Some sources here have said that the governor's health is still fragile, that he tires easily and that he does not show the control he once exercised over the state

Jack Frost, a public relations man who is an independent candidate for governor of Alabama called on Gov. Wallace to resign saying he was not physically able to continue. Mr Frost said Gov. Wallace had frequently found it necessary to cancel appointments here because of his health, but that he had managed to keep many engagements outside the state which would boost his presidential campaign.

Gov. Wallace said he realized that he would not be able to campaign with the vigor that he

White House Directs Colson To Seek Pardon in Usual Way

By Don Irwin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.-The White House has returned an appeal for clemency for imprisoned Watergate figure Charles Colson with the advice that President Ford has decided that such requests must be processed through the Justice Department.

The policy was laid down in a letter from the President's counsel, Philip Buchen, to Charles Morin, attorney for Colson, a former special counsel to former President Richard Nixon. Colson is serving a oneyear to three-year term for obstruction of justice.

Mr. Buchen's letter was in response to a clemency petition that Mr. Morin transmitted to the President eight days after Mr. Ford's decision Sept. 8 to extend an unconditional pardon to Mr. Nixon. The White House press office said Friday that it was the first and, so far, only request for presidential elemency received on behalf of a convicted Watergate figure.

Inaccuracy Reported

The press office made Mr. Buchen's letter public Friday as part of a statement admitting an earlier inaccuracy in comments by Deputy Press Secretary John Hushen, Mr. Hushen said Thursday that Mr. Buchen had referred Mr. Morin's request on behalf of Colson to the Justice Department's pardon attorney, Lawrence Traylor. The comment left some with the impression that the petition had been transmitted to the Justice Department under White House auspices

The press office statement said that it "assumed Mr. Buchen was referring the matter to the Jus-tice Department." Actually, it said, the request was returned to Mr. Morin so he could "make whatever changes he believed were necessary if he planned to contact the pardon attorney."

Mr. Buchen's letter acknowledged receipt of Mr. Morin's request and stated: "The President has decided that all applications for executive elemency should be submitted through the approprizte procedures of the Department of Justice. You might want to communicate directly with that department." An assistant in Mr. Traylor's office said Friday that no petition on Colson's behalf had been received from Mr. Morin or anyone else. Mr. Morin could not be reached for comment.

Mr. Hushen, former chief press officer for the Justice Depart-ment, told a questioner that he assumed the petition had been forwarded to the depart-ment after Mr. Buchen had told him without amplification that it dent accorded Mr. Nixon. @ 1974, the Los Angeles Times. RENO, Nev., Sept. 29 (AP),-Three bandits wearing Halloween masks staged the largest recorded bank robbery in U.S. history Friday when they robbed a bank here of about $1.04 million in cash, the FBI said yesterday. The men escaped into a crowd watching a parade along Reno's casino

India Reportedly Has Asked Russians to Provide Food Aid

By Bernard Weinraub

NEW DELHI, Sept. 29 (NYT). maintain U.S. political leverage -India has made an emergency appeal to the Soviet Union for food, reliable sources said yester-

They said that India had requested from two million to four million tons of food to assist this nation, now suffering severe wheat and rice shortages, and a severe drought in several northern states that threatens to leave millions hungry in the next few months.

Meanwhile a newspaper poll released yesterday found that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's popularity has plunged, largely cause of the economic crisis,

Unique Unpopularity

"The last three months are unique in the degree of unpopularity which the central government may be said to have acquired," said E.P.W. da Costa, director of the Indian Institute of Public Opinion. "There never was a time when the Prime Minister came under such adverse scrutiny."

Diplomats here said that ths request for Russian help was made during two separate visits to Moscow recently by Foreign Minister Swaran Singh and Durga Prasad Dhar, the planning min-ister. The Soviet Union gave two million tons of food to India last

A senior diplomat said, however, that 'there is a bit of a shadow now over Russia's rela-tions with India. The Russians are irritated about the atomic blast. They are irritated about Sikkim, They see India as a very significant country and they value India far more than most Western countries now."

The diolomat was referring to India's surprise underground nuclear blast on May 18, and Mrs. Gandhi's decision to place Sikkim, the Himalayan protectorate, under New Delhi's sovereignty. India is seeking food assistance throughout the world but is meeting some difficulty. One of the reasons for this is the world food shortage; another reason is India's own delicate relations with the two Western countries, the United States and Canada, that could most assist this nation of

The United States expressed its willingness to send food to India, on concessional terms, but Indian officials in Washington have backed away. They have not made it clear whether India actually wanted such help. To some Indian officials, the resumption of American food aid would be a blow to India's pride and a politically touchy problem.

Kissinger Asks Panel to Keverse Czech Gold Vote

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP). The State Department has appealed to the Senate Finance Committee to reverse a vote which would bar trade concessions to Czechoslovakia until Prague paid postwar claims of U.S. citizens.

Involved in the dispute are 18.4 tons of Czechoslovak gold, stolen by the Nazis during World War II, and $105.1 million owed to U.S. citizens for property conficcated when the Communists seized power in Czechoslovakia after World War II.

The gold is controlled by the United States, Britain and France, and no action on it can be made without unanimous approval.

Despite the pleas of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the Senate committee showed little inclination to reverse its stand. The committee has written into pending trade bill a provision barring the return of the gold and the granting of favorednation trade status to the Czechs until at least the principal amount, $72.6 million, of the

Policy Without Consensus

President Ford's economic summit achieved what might have been expected in the present intellectual disarray of the economists: the expression of a wide variety of views with a minimum of agreement. And Mr. Ford, who bore himself manfully in the confusion of ideas, despite the grim distraction of his wife's surgery, has announced a new economic policy board, broadly representative, to consolidate the thinking on inflation of the administration and to play a large role in the creation of "a program of action which will help bring balance and vitality to our economy." But the philosophy on which such a program will be based is still extremely nebulous. Somehow, a policy must be evolved without previous consensus.

This, too, was to be expected, given the vast scope of unprecedented factors that have contributed to global inflation. The President and the secretary of state have shown initiative in the international aspects of this problem, even though this has been confined largely to emphasizing the world's ills, and proposing consultations in the sickroom rather than proposing specific cures. But the President has a very direct responsibility for providing leadership in the way the United States meets this challenge-in preserving the national health in the face of a global epidemic. This is not only his primary duty as President, but it is vital to the success of any international effort to control the plague, since much of the will and the medicinal aids for that purpose most come from America.

Mr. Ford, in closing the economic summit, laid great stress, and rightly, on the spirit with which the American people meet this spreading emergency. Each citizen, each family, each community, naturally has its own responsibility under the circumstances. Each can play its part to "save energy and fight inflation." The saving of energy can be a positive act, expressed by negatives, by turning off lights and joining car pools, say. But what about the fight against inflation? Can that be done in the same manner, by the citizenry at large-by buying gold and stuffing it in the mattress, by withholding purchases, by merely trimming down a standard of living-without counter-productive effects upon the national economy?

President Ford's appointment of the columnist Sylvia Porter to help get the "voluntary citizens' program organized and under way may give guidance in this complex field. But in the meanwhile, such indications of forthcoming government policy as Mr. Ford has provided (reducing the budget, principally) would seem to give a negative cast to his approach. To be sure, the President said that money borrowed by the government is money not available to the citizen, with the implication that what the government does not spend the citizen should. But something more precise will have to emerge from the White House before Americans and those in the rest of the world who look to the United States for light and leadership-can rally that spirit which the President praised and summoned to action.

To spend or not to spend, what to buy and what to allow to remain in the fields or the factories, is very important these days. It must be taken for granted that the administration policy will not be supported in advance by a real consensus. But that consensus must be rallied by the policy, if It is to succeed, and to do that it will have to make hard sense.

The Price of Oil

President Ford's warning that the enormous increase in oil prices imposed by the oil cartel can only "distort the world economy, run the risk of worldwide depression and threaten the breakdown of world order and safety" has drawn a measured response from the President of Venezuela, Carlos Andres Perez. His arguments in support of the policies of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries deserve factual reply.

Mr. Perez contends that the oil producers are simply making up for past price inequities. He says that "before the energy crisis and before petroleum prices reached the levels at which they stand today, the raw materials produced by our countries were purchased year after year at prices which were never in proportion to or in equilibrium with the prices of the manufactured goods which our countries require for their development . . . " This statement is correct as far as it goes, but it stops short of acknowledging that the world export price of crude oil has shot up astronomically higher than other world market prices.

Figures computed by the Conference Board on the basis of United Nations and International Monetary Fund data show that since 1963 the world export price of oil has climbed by 636 per cent—compared to about 290 per cent for nonferrous metals, 230 per cent for food, and 175 per cent for manufactures. Although the OPEC countries did suffer a loss in their terms of trade during the 1960s, the latest oil price hikes have far outstripped even the recent inflation in metals, food and manufactures.

It is that soaring of petroleum prices-and the piling up of scores of billions of dollars annually in liquid reserves by the oil-exporting countries—that is now threatening the world monetary system with breakdown.

Mr. Perez accuses the developed countries of enforcing a policy of "outrageously low prices for our raw materials as a weapon of economic oppression." How accurate is the contention that world economic development has been achieved by the economic oppression of Venezuela or other OPEC members? The latest issue of the World Bank Atlas shows that, from 1980 through 1971, Venesuela had an annual rate of growth in per capita gross national product of 2.3 per cent at a time when its population was growing by 3.4 per cent annually. It is difficult to see how an aggregate growth rate in gross national product of 5.7 per cent a year can be termed "economic oppression."

Nor did other oil-producing states exactly suffer from stagnation; the per capita growth rates in GNP of some other members of OPEC from 1960 to 1971 were as follows: Saudi Arabia, 8.1 per cent; Iran 6.5 per cent: United Arab Emirates, 20.6 per cent. Those rates of growth preceded the steep climb in oil prices, which did not begin until 1971.

To be sure, many of the oil-producing states started from a low-income starting point-but are now becoming affluent. It is worth noting that the oil-exporting cartel is inflicting serious harm not only on the developed countries but even greater damage on the other, much poorer, developing countries that lack oil. For instance, Venezuela, with a per capita GNP of $1,240 in 1972, had triple or more the per capita income of such other Latin American countries as Bolivia, Colombia, El Salvador, Guyana, Honduras and Paraguay-not to mention dozens of countries in Asia and Africa, which are facing starvation and a choking-off of growth as a result of the skyrocketing price of oil.

One can only applaud Mr. Perez's statement of Venezuela's willingness to work in an international forum to establish a balanced relationship between the raw materials produced by the developing countries and the manufactured goods and technology produced by the developed countries. But such balance, on any reasonable calculation. of a sustainable flow of funds in the world. is going to require a marked reduction in the price of oil, which has now soared out of sight of other world export prices and is both aggravating the inflationary spiral and threatening the world with depression.

International Opinion

Common Market Crisis

In mid-September, after the Elysée dinnerparty of the Nine, there were some grounds for optimism about Europe. By the 25th, with the German disavowal of the provisionally agreed agriculture compromise, everything was back to a normal state of crisis.

Up to now the Germans have acted as exemplary Europeans, and their latest action has caused many to wonder whether their policy is becoming more nationalistic. [Chancellor Helmutl Schmidt's European policy does indeed have some very down-toearth features and national interests are certainly admitted to play an overriding part more openly than they were in the past.

Yet it was Bonn that recently made a huge financial contribution towards aiding Italy. And there have been plenty of signs of Schmidt's determination to further French aims toward a "political Europe." On the other hand, the Germans make no secret that they consider the EEC agricultural arrangements in need of reform and that they are no longer prepared to go on footing the bill with no questions asked. And they have their own inflation troubles to cope with. On the debit side, it remains questionable whether the method of retrospective disavowal is acceptable and whether the Germans are not playing with excessively high

European stakes. -From the Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich),

The State Department Summit

By James Reston

WASHINGTON.-Over the weekend, the foreign and finance ministers of the United States, Britain, West Germany, France and Japan were meeting privately at the State Department to discuss the world economic crisis. This is the first indication that the major industrial nations have finally recognized that they must try to agree on common policies to deal with the common threat of worldwide inflation, soaring prices of oil and other raw materials, and the consequent danger of economic depression and financial, social and political

This was a limited meeting with limited purposes, with some awkward handicaps. Earlier this year, they were dealing with this critical problem separately, and fussing with one another about how to analyze what everybody agreed was a worldwide crisis. France was suspicious of American "domination." #### Criticism

President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger have been criticized in the last few days for over-dramatizing the problem and seeming to threaten the oil producing states with military ection, if the latter did not roll back the prices that were dis-rupting the economies of the inand underdeveloped states alike.

"Sovereign nations," Ford said in Michigan the other day, "cannot allow their policies to be dictated, or their fate decided, by artificial rigging and distortion of world commodity prices."

"I'moughout history," he addcd. "nations have gone to war over natural advantages such as water, food, or convenient passages on land or sea." And now, he insisted, "exorbitant" oil prices set by the oil producing nations and their cartel were theatening "the breakdown of world order and safety."

Kissinger was more subtle, but Ford's remarks were taken in the Arab world as a military threat, and this troubled the Japanes and the Europeans, for the threat did not seem to be credible. It violated the first rule of diplomacy, namely that nations should never threaten to do what they are not prepared to do, or suggest policies their allies could not afford to support.

Dangers

Nevertheless, the Ford-Kissinger speeches did dramatize the dangers, and, what was largely forgotten, insisted that cooperation by the industrial nations with one another and with the oil-producing nations was imperative if the world was not to loiter down into political, social, and financial chaos.

What the President and the secretary of state were saying, not too subtly, was that a continuation of scaring oil prices would shatter the world as we know it, that it would lead to unemployment and human misery all over the world, that democracy might not be able to survive inflation at the present rate, and might even lead to Communist or other anthoritarian governments in many parts of what now remains of the free

The facts before the ministers in Washington were not in dis-pute. These facts demonstrated the strain on the industrial nations by the rise in oil prices, and also the dramatic swing of monetary reserves to the producers of oil. Here are the basic facts and projections of the money flowing out of the industrial nations and to the oil producers as the result of the

Another fact to be borne in mind is that crude oil was perhaps the only commodity in international trade which did not register any increase in its price during the period, 1956-71, in spite of it being perhaps the most important commodity in international trade

President at the Crossroads

WASHINGTON. - When Preddent Ford quietly slipped out of the White House recently for Avenue to breakfast with old congressional cronies, his performance showed both why his young presidency is in crists and why it may yet work itself out of Mr. Ford went to the Capitol Hill Club for the weekly meeting of the Chowder and Marching Society, the elitist House Republican group to which the new President belonged for 25 years. Old friends were troubled by his vague, rambling answers to their questions. Although he was one of the party's budget experts in the house, Mr. Ford labored terribly in replying to questions about spending. "It didn't seem like the same old Jerry," a C&M member confided.

But the fact he was there at all is significant. Mr. Ford was treated no differently than other guests at C&M breakfasts—government officials, journalists, scademicians; he was given ten minutes to speak and then was subjected to questions. What's more, such give-and-take sessions are common on the President's

That requires an end to the present chaos on the White House staff and an end to the succession of blundere by Mr. Ford. Since both the chaos and blunders can be traced to Mr. Ford's refusal to eleanly cut the umbilical cord with the Nixon past, Rumsfeld's immediate task is obvious. Although Mr. Ford privately

61 Chileans Given Jail Terms, Exile In Anti-Army Plot

SANTIAGO, Sept. 29 (AP).— A military judge has ordered 61 persons jailed or exiled for periods of 200 days to 25 years for participating in an alleged plot against the military that led to the overthrow last September of President Salvador Allende. All were convicted of attempt-SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 29 (AP).—An unknown number of terrorists holed up in the Venezuelan Consulate continued today to hold six hostages—including a woman official of the U.S. Embassy—whom they kidnapped Friday.

Negotiations appeared to be stalled on the terrorists' demands for $1 million and the release from Dominican Republic jails of 33 political prisoners.

But there was no sign that the armed kidnappera might implement their threat to kill their

As temperatures mounted above 100 degrees Fahrenheit (36.5 C), the kidnappers and their captives received their first food and drink in 24 hours. Sandwiches and hottles of sods were delivered by the Most Rev. Hugo Polanco, the Catholic archbishop, and Salvator Pitaluga, secretary of the Dominican newsmen's association.

Archbishop Polanco said that the American woman Barbara Hutchison, 47, head of the U.S. Information Service's operations in the Dominican Republic, ap-peared to be in good condition. He said that the terrorists told him that one person had been iniured, without specifying whether it was a kidnapper or one of the hostages, among whom was Venemela's consul-general.

The archbishop and the newsmen's representative said that they had been allowed by the terrorists to enter the Venezuelan Consulate "in a human-itarian capacity," and that they had not presented any offers from the Dominican, U.S. or "cnezuelan governments.

Dispute Over Numbers

They said that they delivered 12 sandwiches and 12 bottles of soft drinks, one sandwich and one bottle of soda for each terrorist and each hostage. This report supported statements from the national police that there were six kidnappers and six captives in the building, despite a tele-phoned claim by a terrorist that there were 23 members of his band inside.

The archbishop said that the terrorist group's leader had given him a message telling the Vene-suelan charge d'affaires that "we need medicine and other food, but otherwise everyone is in good health except for the problem of

A senior Western analyst argued that "on paper" the Communist gains are not all that great. But he acknowledged that the heavy summer fighting, com-pounded by American congressional cuts in military assistance, has sharply cut into the morale of South Vietnamese commanders.

Sympathy for Communists

The situation in Quang Ngai poor province with a history of sympathy for the Communists, is particularly disquieting to Saigon.

The South Vietnamese 2d Division, not one of the army's best, has lost a series of outposts to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong throughout the summer, They've been mauled," a military analyst said.

Salgon's forces are now es-sentially defending a narrow belt of highway running north and sonth through the province. In the coastal town of Sa Huynh, which was briefly seized by the Communists at the Jan. 28 ceasefire, soldiers can watch North Vietnamese truck convoys moving on a road parallel to Highway 1. A similar situation prevails in Quang Nam Province, which has also been the scene of heavy fighting. The 2,400-man ist Airborne Regiment—perhaps the best in the South Victnamese Army is warily picking its way in the direction of Thuong Duc district town, 24 miles southwest of Danang, which fell to the Communists on Aug. 7.

But the paratroopers' progress has been slow. An earlier effort to reclaim lost ground in Due Due and Que Son Districts reportedly was not successful.

'Old-Fashioned' Kremlinologists Become an Endangered Species

A few still analyze portents for slues to power relationships. But interviews with defenders and critics of Kremlinglogy—and with Kremlinologists—convey an image

Prof. George Kennan of the Institute for Advanced Study attributed the low state of Kremlinology to the passing of the cold war, the shortage of funds for educational institutions, China edging out Russia in public interest and, finally, "the dull uniformity and unchangeability of the Soviet leadership for the last seven or eight years.

"It's not even stability," noted Michel Tatu, the author of "Power in the Kremlin," "It's an abso-

"Even when I was writing about whether Brezhnev or Kosygin would come out on top, it didn't really matter," noted Edward Crankshaw, another British specialist, He called Kremlinology "old-fashioned, out-of-date."

Surfeit of Data

"As a general key to under-standing, Kremlinology is either misleading or pointless," said Abraham Brumberg, a former editor of Problems of Communism m publication of the U.S. Information Agency.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the director of the Research Institute on Communist Affairs at Columbia University, said the surfeit of information made interpretation more difficult.

What the Shouting Is All About: The World's Economy in Outline

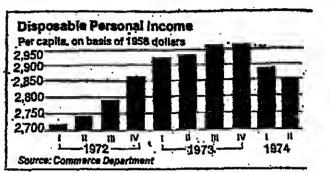

The American Economy

Except for relatively minor slowdowns, for 30 years America has prospered Now it suffers an aberration often called stagilation, a combination of inflation and economic stagnation. The stagnation is evident in the Real Gross National Product chart, measuring all goods and services, and Industrial Production Index, measuring manufacturing, mining and utilities.

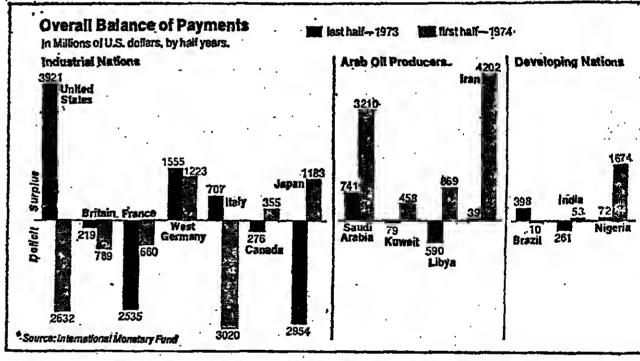

A more familiar statistic is the basic measurement of inflation, the Consumer Price Index. Not yet reflected here is the effect of a recent sharp rise in the Wholesale Price Index, but it will be felt soon.

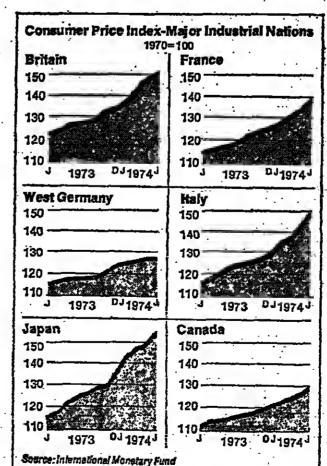

There is no single measure for the con bined effect of both stagnation and infk tion on the individual citizen. The char above shows what is available for spens ing after payment of taxes; less and les

The World Economy

The basic fact of the world economy is the drastic shift of financial power following the rise in prices late last year. For some fully industrial countries, including Britain and Italy, the effect measured in trade balances has been catastrophic. Others, like West Germany, with a robust exp trade, and Canada, with its own oil, have fared well. In the developing world, Brazil, which has lit oil, has done poorly, oil-rich Nigeria well. The oil nations' figures show where the rest of the worl money has gone; how and where that money is invested is a major question.

Inflation is the other international economic experience: It is worldwide, and the United States is better off than most, Some smaller natioos not shown in the charts above are suffering far worse inflationary rates. Reading history, world leaders fear the social upheaval inflation causes even more than inflation itself; Henry Rissinger reportedly thinks it may be close in Italy.

The financing of the Vietnam war and over-ambitious national budgets are among the causes of worldwide inflation. So are the commodity prices shown above, al measured by generally accepted marke guidelines. The recent slight drops in thesi prices may indicate that stagnation, in the form of lessened demand, has now come to the world, as well as U.S., marketplace

Anti-Drought Measures

As is generally known, Nigeria is dealing with problems caused by the sub-Saharan drought and has, so far, expended over N40 million (about US$70 million) to relieve hardships. Work is, however, in hand to provide irrigation facilities and other requisites for long-term solutions to water shortages in the areas affected.

Five river-basin authorities are to be established. They are Niger River, Benue River, Hadeija-Jama are River, Ogun River; two were established last year for the Sokoto-Rima and the Chad basins. Projects, which will be undertaken by these authorities, will mean more than containing droughts (and floods). Their main functions include: I. The exploitation of underground water resources by sinking bore holes. II. The construction of doms for irrigation and flood control purposes.

III. The development of large-scale mechanized farming to increase the production of both food and industrial crops.

IV. The control of soil croachment through afforestation and other means.

The Chad Basin Development Authority is executing the first phase of the South Chad irrigation project covering 40,000 acres at a cost of N20 million. This project will be expanded to cover 100,000 acres in the next development plan period

On January 30, this year, the foundation stone of the Bakolori Dam and Irrigation Project was laid. This is being handled by the Sokoto-Rima Basin Authority, whose immediate task is the execution of the project which will cost NIIO million to complete and is the largest single agricultural project of its kind so far approved by government. When the dam is built, water released will flow all the year round in the river more than 70 miles downstream. This means permanent water supply for the people and livestock living not only in the vicinity of the reservoir but also for those living along the river bank for a considerable distance downstream.

The project will also make it possible for farmers in the crea to horvest two or three crops in a year.

It will create job opportunities for more than 0,000 workers in the flour and rice mills and the sugar and tomalo and meat processing factories which will be sited in the project area. The crea will also have electricity from the hydroelectric power from the dam. The benefits of all these to the local community are obvious.

Supply of Electricity

Projects for the rehabilitation of electricity supply in war-affected areas have been completed and action is in hand for the improvement and expansian of generating capacity throughout Nigeria. The Ughelli plant (100 megawatt) has been completed and a new thermal plant at Sapele (300 megawatt) is being initiated to utilise notural gas resources. The Afam, Sokoto and Maiduquiri power stations are being expanded to meet increased demands for in-dustrical and utilisation.

In addition, the machinery for distributing electrical power is being overhauled to facilitate transmission and ensure uninterrupted supply.

Iron and Steel Complex

Efforts are continuing for the establishment of the iron and steel complex in association with the Soviet Union and General Go-won's State Visit to that country last month has advanced the project. Establishment of an iron and steel complex is part of the 1970-74 National Development Plan, but implementation of the project had been inevitably delayed by a number of time-consuming but essential studies and preliminary work, which must preceed actual implementation.

Extensive geological surveys of the whole country in the search for iron ore of sufficiently high quality has had to be commissioned, for instance, so that project design and location may be approprintely oriented to locallyproduced or to imported raw materials as the case may be.

The first results, were not very encouraging, but more recently, there have geria and the selection of technical partners will be made shortly.

Two other main industries are concerned with the production of phos-phate fertilisers at Kaduna and salt at Sapele (Mid-west) and Ijoko (West) this

Another project for the production of sugar has been launched in Sunti (North-West) with Tate and Lyle (Nigeria) Limited as technical partners.

Road Development Programme

Road Development is one of the priority pro-grammes in Nigeria. The Federal Government is executing a road programme of over N340 million. This amount does not include cost of road projects by State Governments.

Last month alone, the Federal Government awarded contracts worth N40,104,145.70. One of these is for the construction of the Malduguri-Gambaru Road (N25,345, 856.92), which will cover nearly 100 miles. The other two are for the little Gombe-limeta road. Projects already completed include the N23,658 million Apapa Road com-plex, Bauchi-Gombe-Yola plex. Warri-Benin road, been some speciacular developments in the course of the Steel Development Authority's investigations. High grade iron ore deposits have been identified particularly at Irakpe, Agbaja, Shokoshoko and Ajaokuta in Kwara State.

Also, drilling work on coal deposits in the Latia area of Benue-Plateau State indicated that coal of high quality exists in that area.

In the light of these developments, the Federal Government has decided that the first national steel complex, based on local materials, should be sited between Ajaokuta and Lokoia in Kwara State.

Although implementation of the first project will. nocessarily take some more time, the Federal Government recognises the desirability of starting, as soon as possible, pre liminary work on a second plant based on the direct reduction method which would make good use of Nigeria's abundance of natural gas.

Industrial Programme

By the end of 1975, the two (Peugeot and Volkswagen) passenger car assembly plants at Kaduna and Lagos respectively will be in production and should lead to further reductions in the price of vehicles.

Plans are in hand for the assembly of commercial vehicles in Niphase I of Kano-Kari road Benin-Asaba road and the Sokoto-Hella road (linking Nigeria and Niger). Some of the roads form part of the Inter and Trans Africon Highway systems.

It is the firm intention of the Federal Government to open up the country and thereby facilitate the movement of goods from one part of the country to conother in order to enhonce inter state commerce and to boost external trade.

This is based on the policy of regional economic development which is a sine qua non for the exploitation of the will be a favourable balance at the end of the year which will further strengthen the external value of the Naira.

The performance of our external trade sector in 1973 shows a remarkable improvement over that of 1972 which was also a good year. The level of visible exports which stood at N1,434.2 million in 1972 rose to N2,226.6 million in 1973, on increase of over 55 per cent. This was due largely to the increase in the volume and price of petroleum exports which now accounts for 86 per cent of the total value of exports recorded. The N313 million recorded for traditional exports in 1973 represents over 43 per cent improvement on the previous year. Thus, the non-oil exports regained some of the grounds lost in 1972 when a decline of 30 per cent was registered.

Just as exports grow in 1973, so also did import bills rise. Imports were valued at N1,234 million in 1973 as against N990.1 million in 1972. The nonoil sector almost wholly accounts for the increase in the value of imports with the highest increase recorded for industrial raw materials, passenger cars, transport equipment, food. durable consumer goods and capital equipment, in that order.

Not only is the increase in the general level of imports consistent with growing exports, but the structure of imports continues to fall in line with the desired direction of the developement of the economy. Besides, the rate of growth of exports (at about 25 %) is much less than the rate of growth of imports (at over 55 %), so that the increase in the import bills is more than offset by the increase in exports earnings. The net effect is a substantial increase in visible trade balance from N44.1 million in 1972 to N992.6 million in 1973.

The invisible or services account, as usual, registered a defici. In other words. Nigeria pays out more on services such as shipping, airline travels, and investment income to other nationals than we receive on these services from abroad. The deficit increased from N496 million in 1971 to N772.7 million in 1973. The oil sector accounts for 70 per cent of this deficit. For instance, out of the N887.3 million deficit recorded in 1973, over N415 million was paid out as investment income to non-resident shareholders of the oil companies. With increasing participation of Nigeria in the sector, such payments will decline in the years to come. It should also be noted that the deficit has been growing in a relatively healthy proportion to the general growth in the economy. In a way, until we develop the shipping capacity etc. to carry the bulk of our external trade, these deficits on services account are to some extent thevitable in a rapidly developing economy.

Exchange Control Relaxation Measures: Payment for Imports

In view of the improved foreign exchange situation, the government has decided to further relax restrictions on the trade BO-day rule in respect of payment for imports is now abolished and in its place we are returning to normal commercial trading practice. Capital equipment valued at over N.100,000 will however continue to be paid for on suppliers credit terms to be ap-proved by the Central Bank in respect of the private sector and the Federal Ministry of Finance for the public sector. The new credit guidelines for capital goods will be more liberal and flexible in application.

Profits and Dividends The highlight of the de

cision relating to profit and dividends is that we are now returning to the pre-war practice of authorising remittance of dividends as they are de-clared provided that the proper taxes have been paid on them. All outstanding arrears will therefore, be cleared during this financial year. With regard to management and lechnical fees, it is decided that a fixed fee only should be payable in the first five years of the establishment of a new company and thereafter a percentage of gross profit, not exceeding 5 %, may be considered in deserving cases. Turnover or net sales may be considered as a yardstick only in exceptional cases. Appli-cations for technical fees and royalty payments will be related to the state of technology of the industry concerned as well as the existence or other wise of a centrally directed research and development effort in the industry. Thus, each application will continue to be treated on its own merit within these broad guide-

Monetary and

Banking Policy The sectoral credit guidelines for 1973-74 will be maintained in 1974-75, that is, the proportion of each bank's total credit to the various sectors of the economy should be as follows: Production: General Commerce: 32%

Services: 11% Others: 12% The stipulated percentage shares for the productive sectors will be treated as minima while the ratios allocated to general commerce and others will be considered as maxima. The minimum proportion of each bank's loans and advances to be granted to Nigerians in each month will be retained at 40 per cent. The requirement regarding the composition of specified liquid assets will be maintained as in 1973-74. The list of shortterm assets will be expanded to include any money-market instruments that may be issued by the Central Bank.

Financial Details of the Budget

This year, the Federal Government expects to collect N.3,122 million out of which N.591 million represents Statutory Appropriation to the State Governments. An additional N.35 million is to be paid as Non-Statutory Appropriation to the States as ompensanon ior revenu loss consequent on the abolition of export duties and sales tax on Marketing Board produce and rubber. Federally retained revenue is thus estimated at N.2,496 million. Petroleum now provides over 80 per cent of federally retained revenue.

The estimated Federal Government recurrent expenditure for 1974-75 is about N.995 million which leaves a recurrent budget surplus of N.1,501 million for transfer to the Development Fund for financing Federal Capital expenditure. Thus over 66 per cent of federal current revenue will be utilised for capital development. TODAY, Nigeria, utilising the prosperity and political stability of recent years, has moved forward courageously to find fresh avenues to develop all aspects of its national resources. In doing so, it has demonstrated its capacity for self-reliance. When the next four-year national development plan is launched in 1975, Nigeria will further present a dynamic nation devoted to the welfare and happiness of all its people.

It is one of the leading indigenous operations in Nigeria. It pioneered the distribution of frozen fish, with the object of eliminating malnutrition and providing the Nigerian people with a low priced high-protein food. Its distribution network covers all of the densely populated Southern areas and reaches six hundred miles to the North towards the Sahara.

The complexities of fish distribution created not only the largest network of cold stores in tropical West Africa but many other supporting activities, such as:

- trawling, processing, marketing frozen fish and prawns
- · ship owning, operation, repairs and engineering
- refrigerated transport, supply and maintenance of cold storage
- sales and service of heavy trucks, construction equipment, buses and cars
- building, contracting and steel supplies

These activities, generated by the initial operation, have themselves created their own offspring, such as:

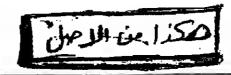

- · marine, technical and air-conditioning equipment
- steel fabrication and boat building
- fibreglass boat assembly and distribution
- poultry farming from hatchery to oven ready
- agricultural estates and oil mills
- timber processing and export
- soft drinks production
- merchandising—jewellery, watches, glassware, porcelain, silverware, fabrics etc.
- · national distribution, wholesaling and retailing
- plastics injection moulding and extrusion
- bulk liquid transportation by land and sea expecially vegetable and mineral oil
- car hire and air charter

Now you know something about usl

The IBRU organisation promotes trade throughout the world and the executives of the Group are constantly on the move. The growth of the Group is continually creating opportunities for further international business. Mr. Michael Ibru, the Chief Executive, welcomes the approaches of businessmen looking for expansion in today's Nigeria.

OPTIONS: BRIGHT SPOT IN THE U.S. MARKET

Despite the current popularity of those little yellow "smile" stickers and lacel pins, it's hard to look a stock broker in the eye these days and say "Have o nice day." body on Wall Street, it would copear, has nod a nice day for a long time

ine CBOE aither so radically from unlisted options that they constitute an entirely new investment medium. For the first time. there is a central marketplace, eliminating the need for a buyer to "search a seller and viceversa. Also for the first .emi option contracts have standard expiration dotes (the last business Monday of January, April, July and October) and standard exercise prices (the price of which the option holder can acquire the stock from the option seller).

This leaves the premium-the price paid for the option—as the only variable, and premiums are determined by bidding and offering on the floor of the Exchange in the same manner as stocks. Indeed, the CBOE's options are listed securities themselves, similar to warrants.

Finally, the Clearing Corporation stands as the opposite party to every transaction, enabling buyers and sellers to act independently of one onother. This enables a buyer to sell his option, either to take a profit or reduce o loss, and a seller "buy in" on option he has written, terminating his obligation to deliver the stock, while in no way affecting the right of the original buyer to sell, hold or exercise his option. The Clearing Corporation guarantees all options transactions it clears, ossuring that the buyer who exercises his option will receive the stock at the stipulated exercise price, and that the seller of the option will be paid.

Orders to buy and write (sell) options are bandled through brokers in the same way as orders to buy and sell stocks, and the buyer or writer of an option knows almost instantly the price at which om order box been executed.

why is it doing so well?" The reason, suggests lo-seph W. Sullivan, President of the Options Ex-change, is that "listed options have opened up on entire new world of investment possibilities to those with the resourcefulness to perceive them. An option on the CBOE con be used alone or in tandem with positions in other securities to produce portfolio combinations with risk/return possibilities impossible to achieve in any other manner.

To illustrate the advantages of options for the buyer, let's use the example of the mythical Universal Umbrella Corporation July 50 option. Written as UUC/July/50, this means the buyer of the option has the right to purchase 100 shares of Universal Umbrella at $50 o share before the lost o share before the last Monday in July. Let's say that in late February Universal Unibrello's stock was trading at $50 per share and a UUC/July/50 option could be purchased on the CBOE at a price of 6. A month later, at the end of March, with the stock at 54, the July 50's closed on the CBOE at 8, producing a 2 point or 30 % profit (before commissions) on the option on a 4 point move in the stock. Hod that been an over-thecounter option rather than a CBOE option, the only action generally open to the buyer who wanted to realize that 4 point odvantage in the stock's price would have been to exercise the option, since there is no organized secondary market open to OTC option traders in which the option's remaining time value would be reflected. The OTC option holder's 4 point realization (before commissions) upon exercise won't even offset 6 point premium paid origincilly for the option, so he ends up with a net loss of 2 points. However, due to the CBOE's continuous secondary market, the CBOE option holder can sell at 8 the option he pur-

Another factor with great appeal to a multitude of disenchanted investors is the risk limitation afforded by the purchase of a call option.
Consider the following:
An investor considering purchasing 100 shares of Universal Umbrella common stock at $30 for a maximum risk exposure of $3,000 could bave bought a 9-month call with an exercise price of 30 for $3 per share on the CBOE as an alternative. He has the same appreciation potential of the stock purchaser for the next nine months and his maximum risk exposure is the $3 per share he paid for the option, or $300. In the meantime, the balance of the money that would have been committed to the stock could be kept in low risk. yield producing instruments such as Treasury bills, producing on investment package similar tobut less risky than—a convertible bond

It must, of course, ciways be kept in mind that on option is going to become worthless on its expiration date unless the price of the stock is above the option's exercise price. Every option buyer should be aware of the cossibility that he may lose every cept he has committed to that option if he does not sell it or exercise it prior to expiration. But it is not necessarily true that should an option expire worthless, its holder is a loser. If his cim in buying the option was to limit the risks of holding the stock or to hedge a short sale of the stock, then the option may have protected him against much more severe losses.

So much, for now, regarding the buyer of the option - what about the

The CBOE's market concept has made some major contributions where the writing of options are concerned. Among them is the fact that for the first time on option market exists with enough depth to susicin institutional-scale participation and make possible in practice what have long been only the oretical advantages of option writing by various types of institutions: Specifically, to obtain additional yield and to bedge against a decline in value of owned securities.

Before the Options Exchange, in the absence of a secondary market where on option writer could. terminate his obligation at any time, the writer had to carry his obligation for the full term of the option no matter what happened to the underlying stock in the market. A writer who was faced with a declining market for the stock could escape the downside risk in the stock by selling it out, but this left his position as an option writer uncovered and exposed him to the some upside risk as a short position in the stock.

While they've mostly lived to tell about it," notes Joe Sullivan, "more than a iew writers have been whipserwed in this feshion by recoveries in a stock decline."

But by contrast on the CBOE when a covered writer determines to sell the covering stock because of a real or anticipated decline, or for any other reason, he can terminate his option writer obligation at the same time with a closing purchase on the CBOE's secondary market thus avoiding this whipsow expo-

Most of the options writ-ten on the CBOE are on a covered basis - that is, where the writer owns the stock — and additional yield or bedging of stock positions are the main objectives, though there has been a significant increase in the uncovered or "noked" writing of options.
"Among the uninitiated," says Sullivan, "I sus-pect that naked option writing may rang along-of the excesses and even decadence of our time.

'However, while it is true that uncovered writing can be highly speculative; for the most part, the uncovered writing strategies that the Exchange has fostered have been among the least risky and most effective of cmy mode of participation in our market."

Perhaps to many money managers, the single most appealing new technique made possible by the Exchange is what is called "variable hedging" and normally involves writing options on two or even more units of stock for each of the units of stock For example, on investor has or purchases 100 shares of XYZ Corporation at 50 and then writes an XYZ/January/50 option against that stock position for a premium of 5 points. The stock is now hedged against a downside loss to 45 and, if the stock remains around 50, the annualized yield is obviously very attractive: But let's say instead of writing just one option against that 100 shore stock position, two options were written. Those two 5 point premiums provide downside protection against loss in the stock all the way to 40 and the yield, if the stock stays, flat, is doubly attractive. On the upside, the loss on the second (the uncovered) option written will outweigh the premiums received only if the stock rises above 60. So the writer of the options has assured himself of a positive rate of return as long as the stock stays within a band between 40 and 60 at expiration.

Additionally, the band of positive return is for from static. If the stock begins to move significontly away from the purchose price of 50, the band can be adjusted by varying the number of options written in order to preserve positive returns within a range on either side of the stock's price.

If X Y Z. Corporation

broke from 50 to 45 shortly after the initial 2-for-invariable hedge was initicted, the writer might. well write two more XYZ! Jonuary/50 options which, with the stock now at 45, confid bedeencopy, be expected to be selling for around 2 1/2. The additional 5 points of premiums received extend the band of positive return down to 35 on the downside while lowering it to 55 on the upside. If the stock should move away from 45, the 4-to-1 ratio of the hedge can be varied once again.

"I am aware of one varsays Sullivan, "which insays Sullivan, "which in-volves about 15 stocks and was set up last November when the Dow Jones In-dustrials were at 980. The portiolio manager was confident of achieving a positive rate of return so long as the Dow Jones stayed anywhere between 750 and 1200 during the 90-day period ending Ja-mary-31, and he did in fact achieve one despite the decline to around 800. If I told you what the an-side of streaking as a sign multised rate of return actually was, it would undermine my credibility.

A month ago, the Securities and Exchange Commission issued the longawaited announcement ci its approval of the Exchange's plans to odd eight additional underlying stocks and 200 additional memberships.

Shortly ofter the SEC's connouncement, one re-porter wrote: "The security industry's test tube baby, prodigiously successful as an only child, is about to enter adolescence."

In fact, the CBOE's booming business has forced it to construct a new trading facility five times the size of the present one. The new floor will provide comfortably for options transactions on a list of several hundred stocks, for a daily volume of 200,000 option contracts representing options on 20 million shares of stock, and even tually, puts as well as cails.

The West Begins to Face the Energy Disaster

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (NYT). -What a difference a day makes, according to the old song. True enough, but how much greater change occurs over the course of a week or a month or a year. In this era, the swiftness of change and the problems it poses for the world are truly

As the third quarter of 1974 ends tomorrow, following the ad-ministration's conference on inflation, the so-called "economic summit" in Weshington, it is obvious that a great deal of change and furbulence has developed in the domestic economic realm in just the last month and, particularly, in the last year—none of it very comfortable or palatable.

Much the same can be said about the international economic situation as financial leaders of the Western world gather in Washington for their annual assessment and hand-wringing on global monetary and trade problems. They have much to decry and worry about at this point.

The production cutbacks and embargo on oil shipments to certain countries a year ago by the Persian Gulf states shocked the world, but the subsequent 400 per cent increase in crude oil prices by the producing nations has brought the consuming nations to the brink of disaster.

The perception of that danger is only gradually appearing in government and public circles. Fortunately, however, the danger is now being clearly seen almost everywhere-and credit for that fact must be traced to recent dramatic statements on the problem by President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. There had to be a beginning for some tough, candid talk on this issue, but it will be hollow in this country and in every the consuming nations in facing other Western nation—both individually and collectively.

The tough talk must not be viewed as the precursor of military or economic warfare by the West but rather as a determined signal that earnest consultation and cooperation are under way by the consuming nations to es-tablish effective countermeasures to the economic beating being administered to the whole world by the oil-producing lands.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (NYT).—Stock prices plunged last week. The Dow Jones industrial average ended at its lowest closing level

The broad retreat occurred even though the market finally received on Wednesday the bullish news it had been awaiting for

At the end of trading on Friday, the Dow was down 48.61 points for the week at 621.95. It was the lowest close since Nov. 9, 1962,

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange were mostly weaker in last week's first two trading sessions. They ended mixed Wednesday although the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. and the Chase Man-in its devastating pricing program that is fast bringing the Western world to its knees. The oil-producing lands would bave to respect the strength of the consuming nations if they show it. The hest way to do enabled the oil cartel to maintain its own unity and to persist

ing forum for international dis-cussion of the energy problem and to demonstrate a real soliacy—among the consuming countries in adopting meaningful cooperative action.

The need for greater oil conservation among all of the consuming nations is absolutely imperative. Higher taxes to reduce consumption, rationing or ac-tions such as the spending limit imposed by France on foreign oil purchases are routes that ought to be adopted to cut demand for foreign oil.

The United States must act with greater speed to implement the goal of Project Independence -reaching greater self-sufficien-cy in energy through the devel-opment of alternative sources to foreign oil. This country. dis-tracted by the Watergate trauma and other divisiveness, had dragged its feet too long in starting and financing the programs that would give the measure of energy self-sufficiency that is clearly needed in the decade ahead. Many other lands need their own Project Independence as well,

The implementation of such programs oo a major scale would be a convincing demonstration to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries that the consuming lands mean business. But the real threat to international stability is the continu-ance of the elevated level of world oil prices. They must be brought down. The world can-not long bear the tremendous increase in prices imposed a year ago, the huge payments deficits they are bringing to the consuming nations and the tremendous strains they are imposing on the international financial systems, to say nothing of their effect on the world food situation and the unbearable hardships imposed on the underdeveloped world.

Purdue Ends Notre Dame Victory Streak, 31-20

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 29 (AP).—Quarterback Mike Terrizzi, playing with a badly bruised shoulder, directed unheralded Purdue to 24 first-quarter points vesterday and the Boilermaker defense held off second-ranked Notre Dame for a 31-20 victory, ending the nation's longest col-lege football winning streak at 13 A touchdown on a six-yard run by halfback Mike Northington with 9:23 remaining followed an interception deep in Notre Dame territory by linebacker Jim Wood and sealed the game for Purdue. The loss gave the defending national champions a 2-1 record, as Purdue scored its first victory after a loss and a tie. The tri-umph was reminiscent of a 28-14 Purdue victory on the same Notre Dame field in 1950, which ended a 39-game unbeaten string for Alabama 33. Vanderbilt 10 At Tuscaloosa, fullback Calvin Culliver broke up the middle for 85 yards and a touchdown to start Alabama to a 23-10 victory over Vanderbilt as the Crimson Tide successfully began defense of its Southeastern Conference title.

The loss was the first in three games for Vanderbilt. Culliver's hurst came two plays after a punt by Vanderbilt's Barry Burion rolled dead at the two. A pass from Richard Todd to George Pugh pnt it nn the 15 and Culing pass to Steve Oliver, bring-ing California from behind in liver went all the way untouched on the next play.

Texas Tech 26, Texas 3 At Lubbock, sophomore quarterback Tommy Duniven rifled three touchdown passes to flanker Lawrence Williams and Texas Tech shocked sixth-ranked Texas, 26-3. for the first Southwest Conference loss by the Longborns in 20 games,

UCLA 56, Michigan St. 14 At Los Angeles, quarterback John Sciarra ran for two touchdowns and set up another with his passing to lead UCLA to a 56-14 rout of Michigan State, The UCLA junior, who ran and passed for a total of 237 yards in three quarters of play, scrambled 41 yards for the game's first touchdown and scored again sever minntes later on a nne-yard

Oklahoma 72, Utah St. 3 Joe Washington bolted for two touchdowns as third-ranked Oklahoma scored a school record 42 points in the first quarter and blitzed previously unbeaten Utah State, 72-3.

The issue was reportedly well issue for Sté des Autoroutes oversubscribed, but apparently Rhône-Alpes. The $25-million thanks to institutional support rather than private investors. Treasury Bills There had been some hope that the success of the recent floatingrate note for Austrasuisse, in which the big Swiss hanks were heavily involved, represented a change in attitude on the part of the Swiss regarding advising their clients to huy such paper. Special Interest It now appears that the Swiss interest in the Austrasuisse loan was tied to the fact that the borrower was a subsidiary of the big Swiss aluminum company Alusuisse and that the banks still do not like floating-rate loans. This had no impact on the Rhone-Alpes issue. There was modest investor support from the Benelux countries and elsewhere. But the commission structure and the method of establishing LIBOR assured small and medium-sized banks (who have themselves been borrowing at a premium over LIBOR: a profit hy buying the paper. In the syndicated bank loan market, spreads over LIBOR are now starting at a minimum of one percentage point. Mexico's state-owned Banco Nacional de Obras y Servicios is seeking $125 million for eight years at 1 1/8 over LIBOR. Brazil's telephone company is in the market for $43 million over eight years at 1 3/8 over LIBOR.

El Salvador reportedly has several loans under negetiations: one of these is for $20 million over seven years at 1 3/4 over LIBOR.

THE EVENING STAR By Colette. Translated from the Franch by David Levey. 144 pp. Illustrated. Bobbs-Merrill. $5.95.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

667 THIS is the first time that I am writing as I please," Colette says in "The Evening Shir," After 53 years of deadlines and commitments, this woman who has such a talent for pleasures is finally allowing that talent to dictate to her. She writes like someone humming to herself, someone pleasantly insomniac, watching images and memories pass before her eyes. She is fond of reading old letters from friends, browsing through vellowed photographs, and these peges are her own letters letters to the world-her own memory-album of people, piaces, fragments of events, the mid-night spack of a life in its 78s Colette died at the age of 81

m 1954 Above all. Colette loves to scribe nature. She uses it as so many painters and sculptors use the nude: as a form on which to build her form. When she does this, her rhythms—flaw-lessly rendered by David LeVay—are like breezes, streams moving and eddying, insects in the grass, hirds, light changing, leaves falling. She has arthritis now and she can see only the garden outside her Paris window, but she has dozens of landscapes laid up in her affections and she can evoke them at will. She is, at once, Parislan, peasant and

She is haunted by a story someone told her, that, in Mar-tinique, in a single day the ground becomes covered with pink flowers. Australia bossis an exuberant blue flower," someone else tells her, and she is reliev-"Let Australia turn blue. It's bad enough to picture a pink universe." Though she is confined to bed and often in pain, Colette refuses to see herself as "bothered" by these circumstances. As she says, she has "long substituted the moderate for the tragic..." It is as good a definition as any for aging well.

Floating on her bed, "like a raft," among her recollections, she prefers to write of small things. She is no longer interested in furniture—her future is too uncertain - just knicknacks, A vignette, for example, of a Berlin journalist who visits her during the war to assure her that he, a German, has "a passionate love of flowers." She is not impressed: "I should not have liked this sombre individual to contemplate a flower in my presence.".

Mr. Broyard is a book review for The New York Times. ...

If the defense has anything to say about it, counterattack is preferable to straightforward resistance. Even where the brunt of an attack can borne by solid resistance, the result is often a passive, immobile position difficult to maintain against long-term pressure.

Besides staying clear of that dead end, counterattack has another advantage over direct resistance: It radically alters the course of the game and suddenly thrusts new problems on the opponent. When an attack has been soundly and logically planned, counterattack in a routine way will be imposs hle, and then a sharp sacrifice is necessary to break out. Assuming that the opponent cannot ignore the counterthrust to carry counterthrust to carry through his attack, he may have no other alternative material and go over to de-fense.

What makes that so difficult is that a position well geared for attack may be completely off balance for defense. Stripped of their attacking function by the surprise counter, the attacker's pieces may be all but impossible to recall for new

New England now has beaten the super bowl champion Miami Dolphins, the New York Giants and the National Football Conference West titlist Los Angeles Rams in its three outings this Plunkett, 14 for 25 for 189 yards, won the game at 3:56 of the final period on a play anparently called from the bench. Vataha, who had dropped a long pass in the second period and had not played since, came into the lineup. He went down the right side and cut across the middle, snaring the fall from defensive back Daye Elmendorf at the three and soun over the goal.

Bills 16, Jets 12 At Orchard Park, N.Y., Jim Braxton ran 21 yards into the end zone in the fourth quarter to give Buffalo a 16-12 victory over the New York Jets.

Neither team completed a pass until late in the game, as heavy rains and winds gusting to more than 40 miles per hour forced both clubs to keep the ball on the ground. Jets' quarterback Joe Namath finally completed two passes late in the game in an unsuccessful drive for New York, The Bills started at the 50-yard line in the fourth period after a high punt, and eight plays later Broxton went in for the score at 8:01. The extrapoint attempt failed when the ball was bobbled by the holder. The Bills had taken a 10-0 lead by the second quarter, but John

Baltimore, 30-10.

Tom Sullivan piled up 93 yards rushing while dashing 28 and 3 yards for touchdowns. On his first touchdown run, he stepped from the grasp of safety Rick Volk at the 15-yard line on the Eagles' opening drive.

Bert Jones, replacing starting quarterback Marty Domres in the fourth quarter, threw a 23-yard pass to Glenn Doughty with 11:08 left for the Colts' only touchdown. After the Eagles led, 12-3, at halftime, the defense sealed the victory by springing cornerback Joe Lavender loose on a 37-yard return with an intercepted pass for his second touchdown of the season. Lavender raced 96 yards with a fumble in the Eagles' first victory of the season last Monday night against Dallas.

Giants 14, Cowboys 6 At Irving, Texas, Norm Snead guided New York to two touch-downs within a 64-second span of the second quarter and the defense, led by John Mendenhall, harassed Dallas to the point of frustration, bringing the Giants a 14-6 upset victory over the Cow-

Snead hit Bob Grim with a 50yard pass to set up New York's first touchdown, which came on a two-yard run by rookie Doug Kotar. After the Cowboys' Dennis Mor-

Riggins scored on a 13-yard gan fumbled the kickoff, Snead found running back Joe Dawkins with a 14-yard scoring pass. Cardinals 29, Browns 7

At St. Louis, Terry Metcalf re-turned the second-half kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown and, less than four minutes later, Mel Gray caught a 68-yard scoring pass from Jim Hart to push the unbeaten Cardinals to a 29-7 victory over Cleveland. The St. Louis defense allowed only its second touchdown of the season. Except for the one Cleveland score, the Browns did not get past the St. Louis 22-yard line. #### Miller Is Leader, Has Hole-in-1 at Kaiser Tourney

NAPA, Calif., Sept. 29 (AP).— A hole-in-one, highlight of the stunning birdie-ace-birdie start. propelled Johnny Miller to a 67 and a two-stroke lead vesterday in the third round of the $150,000 Kalser International Open Golf Tournament.

Miller, the outstanding player in the game this year, brought a joyous cry from his huge gallery when his soaring three-iron shot went in the cup on the fly for the hole-in-one on the 197-yard second hole.

That shot was sandwiched between birdies on the first and third holes—four under par on the first three boles. It pulled Miller Billy Casper, who led the first

Chiefs 17, Oilers 7

At Houston, substitute quarterback Mike Livingston passed eight yards to Morris Stroud for Kanthe fourth quarter, leading the Chiefs to a come-from-behind 17-7 victory over the Ollers.

Livingston's pass to Stroud followed Tom Keating's recovery of a fumble at the Houston 4. On third down, Stroud got wide open in the right corner of the end zone for the touchdown.

The Chief Willie Ellison ran eight yards for a touchdown, capping a grinding 80-yard drive with 7:02 remaining in the game for the Chiefs' seventh straight regular season victory over the

Vikings 11, Bears 7

At Bloomington, Fran Tarkenton hit tight-end Stu Voiet with an 11-yard touchdown pass to lead Minnesota to an 11-7 victory over Chicago Tarkenton, who completed 16 of 25 stlempts for 166 yards, connected with Voigt up the middle halfway through the second quarter for his first scoring pass of the year and 250th in his 14-year career. The Vikings' defense; meanwhile, foiled two Chicago touch-down drives, the first coming when middle-linebacker Jeff Siemon recovered a Gary Huff fumble on the Viking five late in the second quarter.

The other was in the final min-ntes in the game when Paul Krause, who leads active NFL players with 63 interceptions, picked off a Huff pass deep in Viking territory.

Saints 14, Falcons 13 At New Orleans, the Saints recovered a fumble on the Atlan-ta eight-yard line with less than six minutes left and Jess Phillips scored on the next play to give the Saints a 14-13 victory over Atlanta.

The Falcons were winning, 13-7, and apepared to have the game under control until Haskel Stanback fumbled and Alex Price recovered, but the Falcons could not come back close enough for another score. New Orleans' other touchdown came on a 13-yard scoring pass from quarterback Archie Man-ning to Joel Parker with 6:34 left in the second quarter.

Atlanta's finest moment came with 23 seconds remaining in the first half when Gerald Tinker returned a Saints' punt 72 yards for a touchdown that tied the game, 7-7. Atlanta then pulled ahead on 21 and 27-yard field goals kicked by Nick Mike-Mayer.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29 (AP).-Frank Robinson and Larry Doby are considered the prime candidates to become major league baseball's first black manager, succeeding Ken Aspromonte, who has been fired as pilot of the Cleveland Indians. Cleveland general manager Phil Seghi said yesterday that

Somebody Else

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON.—After Edward Kennedy withdrew from the call of destiny the other day, the political reporters put in a hard day's work and came up with a small list of men the Democratic party might send to the White House in his stead. A sad list it was. Not because the men on it lacked merit-some of them didn't - hut hecause it was so small, and so predictable.

There was Governor Wallace, of course, messiah disgruntled American yeo manry and the burni-cross set alike. The more alike. The more ambitious senators of liberal.

Baker milddle-of-the-road and conservative persuasion, a congressman or the usual scattering of governors little known across their state lines but said to be, as they always are, young and attractive, Not a woman, not a black, not a Jew, not a panper, not an industrialist, not a hank-er, not a labor leader nor a working stiff, not a doctor or lawyer or manager or administra tor or artist. Nobody but practicing politicians and very few of

The reporters don't invent these lists. They get them from Democratic politicians who know what kind of people can be nominated by a Democratic convention, Same for Republicans, whose list right now would be even smaller than the Democrats',

There is very little substance to the popular notion that the president is chosen by the people. The people's role is limited to picking between two possible presidents chosen by the parties. This made some sense when party loyalty counted for something but it leads to absurditles in the present condition of party decay.

There is no clear way oot of the two-party trap, but there is a way to place restraints on the unsatisfactory presidents that result from it. It requires only small hallot reform. At election time the hallot should have a third line on which people could vote for Someobdy Else.

Not anybody else in particular Not a write-in. The candidate would be Somebody Else. In 1972. for example, this system would have enabled the voter to chose among Nixon, McGovern and

Is there any doubt that millions of voters who might otherwise stay home would gladly brave sleet and lightning to cast B vote for Somehody Else in the typical presidential election? It is a certainty.

And what of other millions who trudge leadenly to the polls to cast a reluctant vote for the lesser evil because they believe good citizenship requires them to vote whether there is anybody they want to vote for or not? A chance to vote for Somebdy Else would satisfy their sense of clvic ohligation without requiring them to elect a man they believe to be unworthy.

It is conceivable, though not likely, that Somebody Else might beat both party candidates. No problem arises. The party candidnte who finished next in the polling would still become prestdent but he would be on notice that the country prefers Somebody Else, which would place healthy restraints on his instincts toward grandiosity.

The present system encourages such pretentions without foundation. President Nixon, despite the talk of his great 1972 landslide which was said to have given him a "mandate," was in fact a minority president.

The simplest arithmetic shows how this can come about. Here are the figures: The number of Americans old enough to vote was about 140 million. Of these only 55 per cent-or 77 million persons—went to the polls. Of this 55 per cent turnout, Nixon won 61 per cent, or 47 million votes. The Nixon "land-silde." then, was created by 47 million out of B possible 140 mil lion voters, or 34 per cent of the adult population. A man who has only 34 per cent of the vote is deluding himself if he doesn't suspect the country really yearns for Somebody Else.

If Somebody Else runs strongly in three or four elections, the two parties might even change their ways, quit nominatiog men whose chief qualifications are enough money to run a two-year campaign for the party's favor and skill at manipulating the party's machinery, and make an effort to offer us Somebody Else,

It is not likely, of course. Indeed, it is far likelier that they would use their genius to drive Somebody Else off the ballot, perhaps on the grounds that Somebody Else is not a native-born American citizen.

U.S. Fighter May Get Rematch With Justice

By Selwyn Raab

PATERSON, N.J. (NYT).— Seven years after former boxing star Rubin (Hurricane) Carter and another man were sentenced to life imprisonment for a triple murder here, new evidence has been uncovered that raises serious doubts about their guilt.

The two principal prosecution witnesses, the only ones who identified Carter and a codefendant, John Artis, as the hlack gunmen who killed three whites in a barroom shooting in 1966, have now recanted their testimony.

When Carter was arrested, he was a leading contender for the middleweight championship. He also had an arrest record. The trial of Carter and Artis took place during a time of racial tension here and attracted wide attention in New Jersey. The two witnesses, both white and former convicts, told The New York Times that they had been pressured by Passaic County detectives into committing perjury. In separate state-ments—each made without the other's knowledge—they said they had deliberately and wrongly identified Carter and Artis as the Blayers. One of the witnesses also said that detectives had made racial slurs about the two defendants.

"There's no doubt Carter was framed," Arthur Bradley, one of the recenting witnesses, said.

Was Awaiting Trial

When he testified against Carter and Artis, Bradley was 22 years old and swaiting trial for a series of holdups unrelated to the triple murder. He faced a maximum term of more than 80 years in prison. After serving three years he was paroled in 1970.

"There's only one reason I testified." he said in an interview. "That was all the time [the long sentence]. They [the police] never would have got me to talk otherwise. I saw a way out of my own mess." Bradley said that, contrary to his courtroom testimony, he had witnessed no part of the murders or of the killers' escape. "I lied to save myself,"

The other key witness, Alfred Bello, said: "They [the police] promised they'd take care of me if I got jammed up [arrested] again." Bello also said that he had hoped "to capitalize" on a

Rubin (Hurricane) Carter

$10,500 reward offered for the capture of the gunmen. Bello maintained that he had seen the actual murderers at scene of the killings, but that his courtroom identification of Carter and Artis was "a grave mistake."

Persistent police pressure, Bello asserted, had confused him. "They gave me a big brother line," he said. "The cons told me I'd he doing fustice for the families of the white victims-it would be an eye for Bello, who was 22 years old at the time of the trial, has a long police record and is now serving a nine-month sentence for hurgiary.

Bello and Bradley said they had long been troubled by their false testimony but added that they had been fearful of recanting it because of possible harassment by the police in Passaic County—a fear both said they still held. The five-year statute of limitations for perjury has expired and neither Bradley nor Bello can now be prosecuted on that charge in the case. The triple murder occurred early in the morning of June 17, 1966, at the Lafayette Grill the dingy northeast section of Paterson, a neighborhood whose racial composition was changing from white to black working-class.

According to undisputed testimony, two armed black men entered the bar at about 2:30 a.m. Inside were the bartender tender, without saying a word, hurled a bottle at the intruders. The assailants one armed with B 12-gauge shotgun, the other with a 32-caliber pistol, began firing. The two gunmen walked out without taking any money from the cash register. Killed instantly were James Oliver, 52, the bartender and part owner of the tavern, and Fred Nauykas, 60. A third victim, Mrs. Hazel Tanis, 51, died of shotgun and pistol wounds a month later.

Bello and Bradley were each separately sought out by The New York Times. Bradley said he was now willing to admit his perjury because his conscience had troubled him and "I knew sooner or later the truth would come out."

A different explanation was offered by Bello. For years, he said, he had regretted that his false testimony had resulted in life imprisonment for Carter and Artis, but he said he feared reprisals by the Passaic police if he made a public disclosure. He also said his last arrest had convinced him that "the cops are out to get me anyway and there's no reason for me to protect them any-

Bradley and Bello have each recanted in other signed statements made to Fred Hogan, an investigator for the New Jersey Public Defender's Office, which is conducting a separate inquiry on behalf of Carter.

Because of this new information, Paul Feldman, Carter's lawyer, said he would soon file B court motion for a new trial for both Carter and Artis. Carter, who is now 37, said in an interview at Trenton State Prison that he held "no animosity" toward Bello or Bradley. I know they are just part and parcel of what these prison institutions push out," he said. 'They've been abused and misused and it was the police who are most to blame Studies Law Books

During his eight years in prison, Carter has been studying law books and he said it would be difficult in New Jersey's courts to set aside the guilty verdict on the basis of recanted evidence. "Once they get you in jail in New Jersey they won't let you go," he sald, "but I sure hope this new evidence will stand up."

As a fighter, he affected a fearsome pose, with a shaven bullet head, a drooping mus-tache and a beard. Possessing a powerful left hook, he was more of B puncher than a stylist and he won 13 of his first 21 fights by knockouts.

Outside the ring, Carter was active in civil rights. During press interviews in the 1960s he was outspoken about alleged police hrutality in Paterson, other New Jersey cities and New York. At the time of his arrest he was a street worker for an anti-poverty program, aiding youths in Paterson's black neighborhoods.

While in prison, Carter has refused to wear prison clothes or work at institutional jobs. "If I did, I'd be acknowledging my guilt," he said. "I refuse to give up the independence of my mind or spirit and be ware-housed into a uniform and prison life."

Bronsed like a Greek god, we have just returned from holiday but have been forbidden by various superiors from discussing where we went and what we did there. So we won't, except to note that the linguistic high point was the menu of a café in Monaco that translated omelette aux champignons into Euglish as fungus omelet and the low point, again linguistically, was the label found, in Nice and again in English, on a bottle of Côtes de Provence rosé: "Your luminous name glorifies a precious bottle. Your nectar-gay and happy son of old and noble race-comes from the ancient stub of provincial soil and matures in an elating sun." The wine was, un-

According to the newspaper, Khvyl, now 52, deserted from the German front in 1944 and returned to his family's farm in the village of Ostrozhets, where he first hid in the havloft and then built himself a hideaway in the pig pen, surprisingly, mediocre.

His relatives brought him food and drink and he never left the pen, the paper said, adding that the authorities had released him under an amnesty ordered more than 25 years ago. Komsomolskaya Pravds reported that Khvyl's skin had become bluish from the darkness and that he had a permanent squint from 30 years of peering at the world through a crack in the wooden wall of the pig pen.

"His 30 years in hiding were terribly monotonous," the paper said unnecessarily, "and the entire time could be compressed into B few verbs: sit, lie, eat and look through a crack."

Khvyl himself explained that he first hid out to prevent his being forced to join a pro-Nazi group in the Ukraine and then remained in his corner to protect the family's name. After his release, Komsomolskaya Pravda said, he was given a job on a local collective farm.
